

CHAPTER 39

OPENING NEW DOORS OF PERCEPTION INDUCTION

Overview:

Inspired by Aldous Huxley, to expand possibilities to find another way to look at, evaluate and organize new strategies.

OPENING NEW DOORS OF PERCEPTION INDUCTION

Please take a moment and imagine you are standing in the middle of a huge room and on the four walls of this room are many colored doors. Each door represents a challenging aspect of life with a descriptive title or revealing symbol over each entryway. Some of the door might be related to physical fitness or health, financial independence, careers or relationships-perhaps even following a dream or remaining on your spiritual path-you really won't know until you approach the door, recognize its color, see its title or symbol and engage that portion of your life. Some doors may be easy to approach while others you find inner resistance. Choose your direction now and approach one of the doors you seem most attracted to-connect to the feeling you get as you approach the door and acknowledge whatever the emotion, bodily sensation or mental voice you become aware of is-then take a slow deep breath and open the 1st door and step through the door-experience the sensations of your movement as you cross the threshold and immerse yourself within the new location.
